Interventionist | Psychotherapist | Consultant

Anthony has worked in the mental health and addictions field for more than 25 years, serving as both a clinician and an administrator for some of the nation's top treatment providers. He earned his master's degree from Loyola University Chicago and went on to become a Licensed Clinical Social Worker in Illinois and Wisconsin. Anthony further expanded his expertise by becoming a Certified Intervention Professional and a Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselor. He is now the owner of a full-service outpatient addiction practice in Chicago, offering a wide range of addiction and mental health services.

Throughout his career, Anthony has held many roles, allowing him to diversify his skills and broaden his impact. At his core, however, he identifies most strongly as a clinician. He continues to feel energized by providing direct service to the clients and families he supports. In his leadership and consulting roles, Anthony has built treatment programs across multiple states—from conceptual start-up through full operational oversight. His approach to program development centers on creating a vision of excellence that helps clients achieve long-term recovery. He emphasizes a client-centered model delivered by a cohesive, collaborative treatment team. Building a healthy organizational culture is a primary focus for Anthony, as he believes it is the lifeblood of any world-class program.

In addition to program development, Anthony enjoys recruiting and mentoring teams, training staff in best practices, strategic planning, and ensuring quality care. He believes the treatment experience is a powerful opportunity for individuals to educate their minds, activate their spirit, and strengthen their bodies.

Outside of his clinical work, Anthony serves on the board of the Association of Intervention Specialists (AIS), where he is committed to improving industry standards for formal intervention practices. He has facilitated hundreds of interventions across the country and internationally. Anthony believes every intervention should be uniquely designed to meet the needs of each family. His intervention consulting services also include a Family-Coaching Model to support the entire family system and promote long-term recovery. He frequently lectures at national conferences on models of care and clinical best practices. In his community, Anthony volunteers with Gift of Hope in Illinois, a nonprofit organization supporting organ and tissue donation.

A Chicago native and outdoor enthusiast, Anthony finds joy in nature and action sports such as rock climbing and kayaking. He often encourages clients to connect with nature and seek adventure to help ignite the human spirit. While service to others and outdoor pursuits bring meaning to his life, Anthony's greatest joy comes from spending time with his wife and two young children.
